Journal of the Cork Historical and Archaeological Society

www.corkhist.ie

Title: Notes and queries: Fuller pedigree

Author: Fuller, J. F.

Journal of the Cork Historical and Archaeological Society, 1910, Vol. 16, No. 88, page(s) 194

Published by the Cork Historical and Archaeological Society

Digital file created: April 11, 2014

Your use of the JCHAS digital archive indicates that you accept the Terms and Conditions of Use, available at http://www.corkhist.ie/info/tandc.pdf

The Cork Historical and Archaeological Society (IE-148166, incorporated 1989) was founded in 1891, for the collection, preservation and diffusion of all available information regarding the past of the City and County of Cork, and South of Ireland generally. This archive of all content of JCHAS (from 1892 up to ten years preceding current publication) continues the original aims of the founders in 1891. For more information visit www.corkhist.ie.

name and exact position of any object of antiquarian interest in their neighbourhood, giving the townland, and where possible the sheet of the six-inch ordnance map of where it is to be found. All such records will be catalogued and entered on the six-inch sheets kept in the Library. Those who, in addition, will send me a photograph of the object in question and a note of any work in which it is described, will very greatly oblige me. All such photographs and notes will be carefully stored in the room spoken of above, and will be available for examination by workers at all times. Reprints of articles or notices of objects of archæological interest in Munster will be most gratefully received and preserved in the Pamphlet collection in the Library. May I add that the Ethnological Museum of the College has a section devoted to Irish Antiquities, gifts for which will always be warmly welcomed.

BERTRAM C. A. WINDLE, F.R.S., F.S.A., M.R.I.A.,
President, and Professor of Archæology,
University College, Cork.

Fuller Pedigree.—In the "Journal" (April-June, 1910), facing page 88, in a pedigree of mine, appears the name of Robert Pellican. I have not met with this very uncommon surname anywhere in Ireland save in Cork (the Rev. Wm. Pellican also mentioned in the pedigree as Rector In the early of Obrenan, in Kerry, evidently migrated from there). city registers it is frequently to be found. I shall be extremely obliged to any reader of the "Journal" who can supply me with any facts or traditions about the family. The Christian name of Robert, which appears in my pedigree, I have found mentioned in an early English deed-Close Roll, Ric. II., part ii., memb. 12) in Latin, an abstract of which is as follows:-"Robert Pellican, son of Robert Pellican of Ireland, releases and for ever quit claims to Richard de Sutton, Master of St. Bartholomew's Hospital in Smithfield, and to the Brethren there, rents of certain lands in Stretele, Balsham, and Wykham, to be received of Dionisia de la Ryvere, wife of John de la Ryvere, Knight, and once Lady [of the Manor] of Stretele Dated at Stretele, 8th April, 6th Ric. II. [1383]." It appears to me highly probable that this Richard of Ireland was ancestor of Richard of Cork, who married Frances Fuller at St. Peter's, 2 June, 1701.

Glashnacree, Kenmare.

J. F. FULLER.

Dundrinane and Castlemore.—Mr. Butler, in his paper on Muskerry (this "Journal," July-Sept., p. 122), has the following footnote:—"It is impossible to accept Canon O'Mahony's statement that, on the death of De Cogan, Dundrinane and the neighbourhood passed into the possession of what was afterwards known as the Muskerry or Blarney branch of the MacCarthys. The branch did not come into existence until 150 years after the first De Cogan's death. An early MacCarthy is called 'of Dundrinane,' but that did not imply that he held the Castle."

I am surprised that Mr. Butler should have thus misunderstood the statement that he criticises. The word "afterwards" ought to have prevented his strange misinterpretation; it could not have been used if I