Journal of the Cork Historical and Archaeological Society

www.corkhist.ie

Title: Quarterly notes

Author: J. B.

Journal of the Cork Historical and Archaeological Society, 1901, Vol. 7, No. 50, page(s) 118-119

Published by the Cork Historical and Archaeological Society

Digital file created: December 22, 2013

Your use of the JCHAS digital archive indicates that you accept the Terms and Conditions of Use, available at http://www.corkhist.ie/info/tandc.pdf

The Cork Historical and Archaeological Society (IE-148166, incorporated 1989) was founded in 1891, for the collection, preservation and diffusion of all available information regarding the past of the City and County of Cork, and South of Ireland generally. This archive of all content of JCHAS (from 1892 up to ten years preceding current publication) continues the original aims of the founders in 1891. For more information visit www.corkhist.ie.

This content downloaded from www.corkhist.ie

All use subject to CHAS Terms and Conditions

Digital content (c) CHAS 2013

charities; and in the parish church of Dunmanway is to be seen a handsome and costly memorial to which he thus alludes in one of his memoranda: "I have erected in the Roman Catholic Church of Dunmanway a monument sacred to the memory of my parents, my wife and children. Their bodies lie far apart, as it has been God's holy will; but the memory of all will be preserved and held sacred here. September, 1872."

The disastrous failure of the Overend Gurney Bank very considerably reduced Mr. MacCarthy's income and put an end to his benevolent plans; and his last years were spent in absolute retirement at Southampton, where his death, in his seventy-sixth year, occurred on the 9th of April, 1884. A simple cross in the Catholic portion of Southampton Cemetery marks the spot where lie the remains of one who in his lifetime so strikingly exhibited the highest and noblest characteristics of the ancient Celtic race from whom he sprung, and has left besides so many claims to be rightly regarded as a Cork antiquary.(12)

CN.

(12) Mr. MacCarthy's eldest son was an officer in the army who died young in India. His second son, Florence Strachan, is also dead, but has left three sons, two of whom, Florence Popham and Donald, are now in Oregon, and one, Eugene, in Tasmania, and a daughter now a nun. To the extreme kindness of their widowed mother, Mrs. MacCarthy, who resides at Pokesdown, Bournemouth, in placing the papers her father-in-law left at his death at the disposal of the present writer, is due the foregoing sketch of Mr. Daniel MacCarthy (Glas.).

Quarterly Notes.

The Journal Royal Society Antiquaries, Ireland for the first quarter of this year (vol. xxxi., part i.) presents a diversified bill of fare, to wit:—"Prehistoric Remains in North-Western Clare," by T. J. Westropp; "Loughlinstown and its History," by Francis E. Ball, M.R.I.A.; "The Gigha Ogam," by Professor Rhys; "Notes on the Cross of Cong," by E. P. Wright, M.D.; "An Identification of Places named in Tirechan's Collections," by H. T. Knox, M.R.I.A.; "Extracts from the Old Corporation Books of New Ross, County Wexford," by Colonel P. D. Vigors; and "Extracts from the Diary of Lieutenant David Thomas Powell, 1790-1795," by R. Linn.

The Journal of the Waterford Archæological Society, January-March, contains an interesting paper by Major O. W. Cuffe on "The Old Gun found in River Suir, January, 1901," and an equally informing note on the same subject by Mr. W. H. G. Flood. The Rev. C. Buckley, a member of our own Society, contributes a readable letter on "Liscarroll Castle and Ballybeg Abbey." The remaining papers are:—"The Kings of Ancient Ireland: their number, rights, election, and inauguration," by Rev. J. Mockler; "Notes relating to the Manor of Ballygunner, Co. Waterford," by W. H. G. Flood; "Antiquities from Kilkenny City to Kilcooley Abbey," by Rev. W. Healy, P.P.; and "Waterford and South-Eastern Counties' Printed Books, Newspapers, etc.," by J. Coleman.

The Ulster Journal of Archæology for April maintains its wonted excellence. It abounds in pictorial illustrations and contains seven papers, viz.:—

This content downloaded from www.corkhist.ie
All use subject to CHAS Terms and Conditions
Digital content (c) CHAS 2013

"Ballygally Castle," by the late Rev. C. Porter, edited by Francis J. Bigger, with an architectural description and plans of the castle by Mr. W. J. Fennell; "Medals of the Ulster Volunteers," by Robert Day, F.S.A.; "Death of Malachy III., Bishop of Down," by Rev. James O'Laverty, P.P.; "Ulster Bibliography," by E. R. McC. Dix; "Bronze Vessel found near Cushendall, Co. Antrim," by the Rev. W. P. Carmody; "Some Notes on the Old Irish 'Sweat-houses' at Assaroe, Ballyshannon, and Kinlough, co. Leitrim; and on several Rude Stone Monuments near Bundoran and Ballyshannon," by F. W. Lockwood; "The History of Tynan Parish in the Arch-diocese of Armagh," by the late Right Rev. William Reeves. Reviews of books follow.

Short papers on Duald MacFirbis and "Pedigree and Arms of Roche=Roach Family" appear in the Gael for June. This monthly bi-lingual journal is invariably a pleasing blend of the past and the present. A particular feature of recent numbers is the illustration of old Irish family heraldry.

J. B.

Notes and Queries.

LOCAL HISTORY, ANTIQUITIES, FOLK-LORE, ETC.

Contributed by Canon Courtenay Moore, M.A.: A FORGOTTEN MITCHELSTOWN WORTHY.
R. D.: REV. CHARLES BUNWORTH'S HARPS; BRONZE SPEAR HEAD.
Mananaan Mac Lir: THE CAULFIELD LIBRARY; THE CORK ARCHÆOLOGICAL SOCIETY.
"Huguenot": THE RUMLEY FAMILY.
M. G. R.: BALLYGALLY HOUSE, CO. WATERFORD; MOCOLLOP CASTLE, CO. WATERFORD.
"Je Fleuris": SIR IGNATIUS WHITE, BART., ALIAS VITUS-MARQUIS D'ALBEVILLE, COMTE D'ALBUI, AND PERPETUAL MAYOR OF ST. ARNOULF, FRANCE.

A Forgotten Mitchelstown Worthy.—Rev. John Keogh, D.D. The worthy in question was not a native of Cork county, but only a settler in Mitchelstown from the neighbouring county of Limerick. His father, Rev. John Keogh, D.D., was born about the middle of the seventeenth century at Clooncleve (now called Rivers), near Limerick. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he distinguished himself very much by his proficiency in mathematical studies. He married the daughter of Doctor Rous Clopton, of Stratford-on-Avon, of whose family honourable mention is made by Theobald in his preface to his edition of Shakespeare.

After his marriage, Dr. John Keogh wrote the following learned works:—(1) Scala Metaphysica, or a Demonstration of the dependance of the several degrees of animated existences on the Creator, from the highest order of angels to the lowest of insects; (2) A Hebrew Lexicon; (3) A treatise, entitled De Orthographia; (4) The Solution of Mystical Problems; (5) a Latin Grammar; (6) a Latin Prosody; (7) a Greek Grammar; (8) an Analogy of the Four Gospels; (9) a Demonstration of the Doctrines of the Trinity in Latin verse.

It will appear from this list that the learned author was quite as remarkable as a classical and oriental scholar as a mathematician and metaphysician. He also wrote various other learned works, but his library, unfortunately, was consumed

This content downloaded from www.corkhist.ie
All use subject to CHAS Terms and Conditions
Digital content (c) CHAS 2013